

AUSTRIANS RE-TAKE CITY OF LEMBERG

BERLIN REPORTS THAT GALICIAN CAPITAL HAS BEEN CONQUERED AFTER SEVERE BATTLE.

RUSSIA'S HOLD BROKEN

Succession of Austro-German Drives Succeeds in Practically Ridding Province of Slav Invaders.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, June 23.—Lemberg has been conquered after a severe battle, according to official reports received from the headquarters of the Austro-Hungarian army. Galicia's capital fell before the advance of the second army.

The city was occupied by the Russians on September 12, 1914. It has since been in Russian control over months.

Russia's Hold Broken.
For the last twenty days since the Austro-Germans took Przemyśl from the forces of Emperor Nicholas, it has been the objective of a series of fierce and concentrated advances on the part of the Teutonic allies. Their success will have a far-reaching political effect as the driving out of the Russians from Galicia is counted upon in Berlin to help maintain the status quo in the Balkans.

The capture of Lemberg was one of the earliest important successes of the Austro-Germans. They pushed forward rapidly in Galicia and at the high water mark of the invasion found almost all the province in their hands. They approached within striking distance of Cracow at the western end of the province close to the German frontier, stormed the heights and passed of the Carpathian mountains which separate Galicia from Hungary, and to the east swept down through the crown land of Bukovina to the Rumanian frontier.

All that has been changed by the steady succession of Austro-German victories of the last few weeks. The change began with the launching of a great drive from Cracow eastward. Great numbers of German troops were sent to assist the Austrians as well as a vast amount of field artillery. The use of artillery in the offensive has been described by the correspondent as on a scale never before undertaken. Its effectiveness was relatively increased by shortage of shells on the part of the Russians, which is believed to have contributed largely to the weakening of their resistance.

First Successes Followed Up.
The Austro-German army pushed forward eastward through Galicia, reaching Przemyśl on June 2, and then without pause struck at Lemberg from the south and west. At no point were the Russians able to withstand the terrific bombardment directed against their position. On the night of June 2, the defense was broken, sixteen miles west of Lemberg, of great natural strength, proved to be untenable.

With Lemberg now in her hands, Austria has gained the key to the whole province of Galicia. The fighting in this campaign has been of unusual intensity with heavy losses. The figures of killed, wounded and captured are given in the Russian and Russian official statements, run into the hundreds of thousands.

Russia had made plans for permanent occupation of Galicia, bringing in officials to set up official administration in the territory as far as it was taken. Lemberg was rechristened Lvov, the old Russian Polish name. The city has a population of about 200,000 and is an important Russian military station. It is now for its imposing buildings. The city is protected by outlying forts, although its defenses are much inferior to those of Przemyśl.

In Shavli Region.
Petrograd, June 23.—The Russian war reports for the following day show a large enemy transport loaded with cartridges were seized and burned by our cavalry Saturday in the enemy's rear on the road between Shavli and Lemberg. Our troops put the powerful convoy of the transport to the sword and annihilated several commanders of the enemy Chasseurs and mounted patrols. The Russian Rikova Monday our infantry made progress.

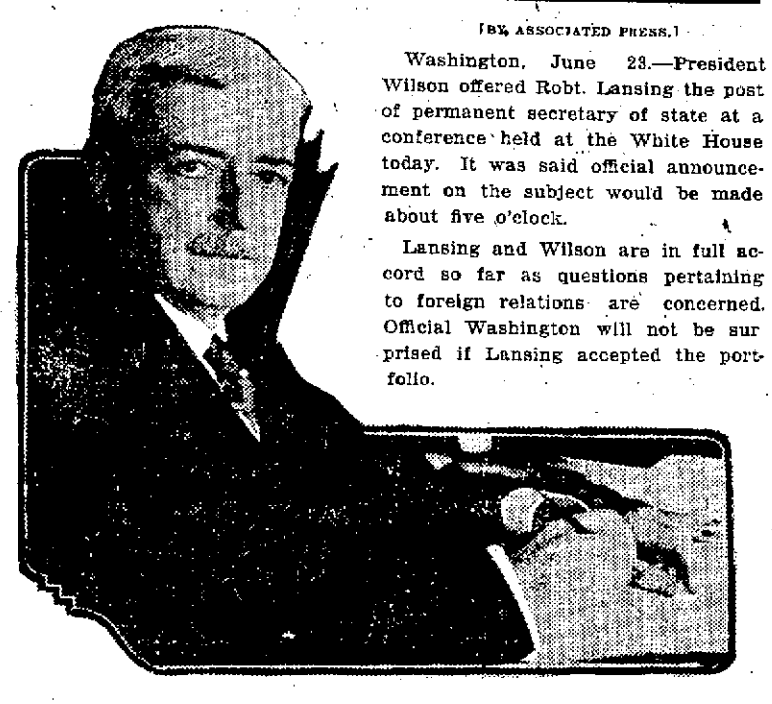

In the Taneff region our infantry crossed the river Sunday night near Gortcha and captured a battalion of the 52nd Austrian regiment. Monday night we repulsed desperate attacks by the enemy near here and took eight hundred prisoners.

Battle on Dneister.
"On the Dneister we achieved an important success below Nijni. The Austrians sent across the Dneister strong contingents with which we been fighting desperately since the fifteenth on the long front. At dawn this struggle ended in our success. Our infantry stormed fortified farms, where the enemy resisted desperately. Here we took more than 3,500 prisoners and many machine guns. The enemy fell back across the Dneister. Our Cossacks pressing the enemy's head crossed four enemy bridges, and continued the pursuit on the right bank near Koropet. The enemy also is retreating."

Monday night after a desperate battle, we stormed three other villages, taking 1,000 prisoners, including commander of 42 brigades and numerous machine guns.

Italians Bombard Maribor.
Genova, June 23.—Via Paris, June 23.—A Tribune dispatch from Laibach says: "The Italians are gaining possession of the positions below Maribor, after a fierce struggle against the Austrians, particularly in the direction of the city, which displayed great tenacity. The Italians now are violently bombarding the city."

Wilson Offers Lansing Post As Permanent Chief of State

Robert Lansing at his desk (photographed since he became secretary of state ad interim).

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, June 23.—President Wilson offered Robt. Lansing the post of permanent secretary of state at a conference held at the White House today. It was said official announcement on the subject would be made about five o'clock.

Lansing and Wilson are in full accord so far as questions pertaining to foreign relations are concerned. Official Washington will not be surprised if Lansing accepted the portfolio.

Both Houses of Legislature Put Through Statute Consolidating Three Fish Boards.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, June 23.—Both houses of the legislature have put through the administration's bill merging into a state conservation commission the several boards now administering the fish and game department, fisheries, state park department, and conservation commission. Only Senator Culbertson voted against the bill.

An amendment adopted by the senate concurred in by the assembly, for a committee of six senators and seventeen assemblymen to sit when complaints of the official conduct of commissioners are employees are brought; preserving the civil service statute of the present employees and providing that no more than two of the commissioners shall belong to the same political party.

The senate unanimously accepted all four of the assembly amendments to the fish and game bill, which now goes to the governor. As amended, it preserves the principle of the Husting law repeated by this act.

The senate argued an hour on the assembly bill, but postponed further consideration until four-thirty p. m.

Senator Bray's well known amendment incorporating his plan of legislative committee to inquire into the official conduct of members of the commission, was adopted, the lieutenant governor breaking a tie vote.

With only four votes in opposition, the assembly passed the bill proposed amendment to the constitution to increase the salary of members of the legislature from $500 to $1,000 per term. The amendment was passed by a vote of 10-4.

The assembly killed the Grell bill repealing the annual appropriation of $7,000 for the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association.

Warden Allen Will Seek Wife's Slayer
Will Make a Personal Attempt to Fix Blame of Wife's Death on Guilty Convict.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Joliet, June 23.—Edmund Allen, warden of the state penitentiary here, whose wife was slain in her body burned in their department of the prison on Sunday, plans to personally seek out the slayer from among the eighteen hundred convicts, it became known today.

Warden Allen plans to assume personal charge of the investigation after the inquest is resumed tomorrow. The investigation is pressed today for more evidence tomorrow and the convicts held under suspicion will be subjected to another severe questioning.

Negro Waiter Suspected.
Suspicion that Walter Edwards, a negro waiter, knows as much of the details of the death of Warden Allen's wife as "Chicken Joe" Campbell, the colored trustee, was strengthened, officials of the prison said today after further information was gathered.

Fred Robinson, a prison guard, gave the information which officials believe tends to indicate guilty knowledge at least on the part of Edwards. When the convict fire department was battering down the door of Mrs. Allen's room Sunday morning, Robinson said Edwards admitted him into another part of the house and said: "Mrs. Allen is in that room. For God's sake get her out."

Thaw Takes Stand in Sanity Trial
Attorney Claims Slayer of White is Sane and Would Not be a Menace to Society.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, June 23.—Harry K. Thaw took the stand in the trial before a jury to determine his sanity. Mr. Stanchfield in opening Thaw's case told the jury today the main question at issue was whether Thaw is sane at the present time and whether his liberty would be a menace to society.

The unwritten law, said the attorney, was subject that need not be discussed in connection with the case inasmuch as it figured in the trial at which Thaw was acquitted of the murder of Stanford White. But the question before this present jury was whether Thaw was now in a normal mental condition.

Mr. Stanchfield reviewed the history of the Thaw case, going into considerable detail regarding Thaw's marriage to Evelyn Nesbit and her relations with Stanford White. Coming to Thaw's second trial, the attorney read to the jury the argument of William Travers Jerome, Thaw's prosecutor in which Mr. Jerome denounced Stanford White and said that if the issue to be tried was whether Thaw was sane or insane, there might not be a trial. Mr. Stanchfield quoted Mr. Jerome as saying also that "no one pretends that Thaw is insane as he is not in court."

The attorney then read to the jury the finding of the commission which found Thaw sane during his first trial in 1907, when the jury disagreed. Thaw's defense then and at the second trial was temporary insanity and this was the verdict of the jury at the second trial, said the lawyer.

"If necessary, I will produce the medical experts who will testify that he believed Thaw sane at the time they rendered the verdict," he said.

TWO HOUSES PASS MERGER BILL TODAY

BOTH HOUSES OF LEGISLATURE PUT THROUGH STATUTE CONSOLIDATING THREE FISH BOARDS.

Senator Culbertson Only Member of Upper House to Vote Against Administration Measure.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Ekern Makes Plea for Martin Bill
State Insurance Head in Sympathy With Measure, Calling For Investigating Committee.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., June 23.—Insurance Commissioner Ekern went before the joint finance committee of the legislature yesterday with a plea for the Martin bill, which proposes the creation of a committee to investigate the conflagration hazard in this state and the possibility of reducing fire insurance rates by giving the sort of advice when it may tend to cut off his commissions from premiums.

The cost of maintaining the Milwaukee fire department is constantly growing. This bill seeks to bring down this expense. The same conditions apply to other cities. Sprinkler protection has reduced fire losses to a point where they are almost nil. The insurance companies now reduce their rates for properties thus protected. The expense of installing such equipment is saved in reduced premiums. The sort of advice given by the committee would be small as for large properties."

Skipper Manages to Beach Tunisian Following Submarine Attack.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, June 23.—Tunisia has been torpedoed off Lowestoft by a German submarine. Her skipper was killed. The Tunisia was bound from Montreal to Hull with five thousand tons of wheat. Her crew was landed.

Explosion Kills Two.
Philadelphia, June 23.—The explosion of a benzine tank wrecked the building of the Thomas Potter Sons & Company, oil cloth manufacturers, here yesterday, and caused one death and two serious injuries. Firemen, burying them deep beneath a pile of debris, causing their death.

French Loan Floatation.
New York, June 23.—Morgan & Co. and the Rothschilds of Paris will float a great French loan in this country, announcement was made yesterday.

Auto Mishap Fatal.
San Francisco, June 23.—Six middle westerners were injured and a San Franciscan probably fatally injured when a touring car collided with a motor bus in front of the Seery building yesterday.

Establish Strict Censorship.
Governor Jose Mayoreau, Villa commander, has re-enforced censorship in all the territory he commands. Newspapermen were even denied admittance to the government offices.

Seek His Relatives.
Manitowish, June 23.—Police authorities are seeking relatives of a chimney sweeper who fell from a roof of a house at Cleveland, Wis., last night, fracturing his skull, from which he died.

No More Offers.
Washington, June 23.—President Wilson announced today that all the offers of mediation in Europe which the United States have made public or semi-public, have been disclosed and that at present no new efforts were being made. Foreign governments are generally he said, aware of the desire of the United States to do anything possible to assist in bringing peace.

WILSON INTERESTED IN PLANS TO BRING IN GERMAN IMPORTS

Plight of New York Importers Will Be Heard—Held by England's Order in Council Decree.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, June 23.—President Wilson has taken an interest in the effort of New York importers to bring in goods from Germany which have been held up by the British Order-in-Council, and has directed Secretary Lansing to confer with the delegation. The president would receive the delegation himself, it was said, but for the fact that he leaves for the summer White House at Cornish, N. H., tonight.

White House officials are unimpressed first hand of the plans of importers, but from other sources they understand they would charter steamers to bring in goods bought or contracted for by Germany before March 1. Much of the merchandise now is at Rotterdam, it is said, and other consignments are enroute from Germany to Dutch ports.

Before June 15, such goods were being brought to the United States by special permit issued by the British government, but since then no permits have been issued. It is estimated that probably $50,000,000 worth of merchandise is involved.

Finance Problems Serious to Dutch
Receipts from Revenues Decreasing and Operating Expenses Are Increasing.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Amsterdam, June 23.—The published statement of the receipts of the Dutch government, from all forms of taxation and state enterprises for the month of April, shows that while the war is not only increasing the cost of running the Dutch government, it is also decreasing its revenues. This is due to the burden of the expenses of the mobilization well high intolerable, the added cost of ordinary expenses of life long before the war, taxes in the Netherlands were remarkably high. Every Dutch child started life with the handicap of his share in over $200,000 per day of taxes for expenditures which are unknown in any other country of the world. In Holland it is an existence tax; for it costs that much to maintain dykes to keep great part of the Netherlands from being submerged.

The annual budget in Holland is carefully calculated to produce a certain figure through taxes; when the revenues fall below that figure, as in the month of April, extra imposts are necessary and lead to growing dissatisfaction among the people who pay taxes. This year, the month of April exhibits a shortage of $4,800,000 compared with the revenue of the corresponding month of last year. So great is this deficit in proportion, and so close have the figures this year, in the three months of April, that the revenues fall below that figure, as in the month of April, extra imposts are necessary and lead to growing dissatisfaction among the people who pay taxes.

Midshipmen Plan to Secure Marks Early
Testimony is Given Out That It is a General Practice To Give Out Advanced Information.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Annapolis, Md., June 23.—It was a general practice among naval academy midshipmen to enter the marine engineering department, to obtain information as to their marks on recitations and examinations, according to the testimony today of midshipman James H. Waddell and C. M. Reagle of the former third class.

They were called before the court of inquiry which is investigating irregularities in examination papers. Cause of testimony given yesterday to the effect that they admitted engaging in such expeditions. Waddell and Reagle said they had gotten into the engineering department by themselves several times and in company with others, among them R. M. Nelson, an honor man of the graduating class, who had been recommended for dismissal.

The purpose of obtaining advance information on marks, it was testified, was to enable a midshipman who was behind to study up.

Turkish Snipers Pick Out Allies' Officers in Dardanelles Fight
Recent Loan Failure Equivalent to a Vote, Lacked of Confidence.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Athens, June 23.—A great proportion of officer losses to the French and English forces in the Dardanelles have been the activity of the Turkish snipers who have special instructions to pick out the officers. A correspondent with the French force writes:

"In many cases the snipers' eagerness for this duty is assisted by the huge loot to be obtained from the pockets of the officers. Some of the snipers who have been caught were found with large sums of British and French money, as well as other property belonging to officers."

REMEMBER FARMERS BUY GOODS SPEAKER TELLS ADVERTISERS

Importance of Study Rural Communities Emphasized at Convention of Ad Men.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chicago, June 23.—Farmers are different than they were twenty years ago. They are wearing garters now. B. T. Meredith of Des Moines, Iowa, told delegates to the general convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World today.

"Some of you advertisers act as if you thought the farmers didn't wear coats and shoes," Mr. Meredith said. "Why, do you know that fifty per cent of all the farmers wear garters? It's the truth and has been proven by investigation. You men have not realized what the farmer can buy; that he pays from fifteen to forty dollars for a suit of clothes, and buys motor cars from five hundred to two thousand dollars."

"The advertising agencies should study the rural towns, should know the farmers of today. You are not prepared. You think the farmers nowadays are the same they were twenty years ago."

The convention city for 1916 was to be selected today at a meeting of the national body. Cincinnati and Philadelphia are making strong bids for the convention.

Still Holds Guards at Governor's Home
Gov. Slaton Appears at Office For First Time Since He Commuted Leo Frank's Sentence.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Atlanta, Ga., June 23.—The guard of militia and extra county police still surround Governor Slaton's country home here today and no indication is given as to when it will be withdrawn. Those who bitterly opposed to the governor's action in commuting the death sentence of Leo M. Frank to life imprisonment, ceased their demonstrations with the dawn of tomorrow and all was quiet near the governor's home and in the city since. Governor Slaton went to his office yesterday for the first time since Saturday and was expected to appear at the capital again today when the legislature convenes.

Five Reported Killed.
Five persons are reported dead at Mexico, the little adobe town consisting principally of saloons, gambling halls and other resorts not permitted on the American side that lies across the street from Claxico.

After the shock the stricken towns were in darkness except for the light of the burning buildings. Great confusion reigned everywhere. Ranch and city residents who had dinner at home last night, woke up today in an open field beside roadways or ditches.

As far as can be learned, the shocks were severest down at the border, and below the border, and grew less and less the farther north it came, so that Calipatria and Noland appeared to have been injured slightly less than the towns in the south end of the valley. The earthquake extended all the way to Yuma, Arizona. The duration of the first shock was about thirty seconds. This was followed half an hour later by a shock almost as severe.

Five Reported Killed.
Fifty deputies took stations about the business district here and patrolled the streets ready to extinguish any fire that might spring up. Telephone and telegraph service was immediately stopped. The telephone companies are up a service board in a vacant lot back of a building and messages were sent to Yuma and there relayed to other points. The Barbara Worth hotel, a four story building, shook, the shock in excellent shape. The decorative work of the interior fell to the floor but not a person was injured. The elevator kept running until everybody was out.

On the other side of the business district are ruined buildings, some completely razed, others opened by gaping holes. Broken glass from display windows cover the sidewalks. In the gutter are the bricks and debris fallen from above. The streets are closed to automobiles and pedestrians are warned to keep in the center of the streets. In the industrial district the damage is still figuring. Five people in gambling houses lived in the street leaving piles of gold coins on the tables which were later scattered in the ruined buildings. Audiences in moving picture houses quickly vacated.

More Shocks Felt Today.
Calixco, California, June 23.—Further earthquake shocks were felt here today. Several tremors at midnight were followed by a severe shock at ten this morning.

EARTHQUAKE HITS LOWER CALIFORNIA

SEISMIC CONVULSIONS SHAKE IMPERIAL VALLEY NEAR MEXICAN BORDER EARLY TODAY.

Buildings Destroyed and Burned and Hundreds Left Homeless—Five Persons Killed in Mexico.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
El Centro, California, June 23.—Originating somewhere in the old volcanoes of the Cocosah mountains, the granite backbone of Lower California, a seismic convulsion shook and rattled the imperial valley of California last night and today. Its cluster of little cities are practically in ruins. Buildings were destroyed. Fire did its part and damages are estimated at more than a million dollars. Such was the fire report coming to hand after the restoration of wire communication.

Five Reported Killed.

Under the new system devised by Postmaster Cunningham, ten city carriers will double up on the work of the eleventh. Beginning the first of the month, a sub-carrier will be engaged while the regulars are on their vacation. In the clerical department a substitute clerk is on duty four hours per day during the vacation period.

TRAINING SCHOOL IS OPENED FOR SUMMER

STATE LAW HOLDS DOWN ENROLLMENT AT SESSION THAT BEGAN MONDAY.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS

Are Secured to Address Students During Six Weeks of Study—Three Capable Instructors Engaged.

Forty students commenced work Monday at the high school, when the six weeks' summer training school session was opened. The state regulation recently passed, stipulating that on and after July 1, 1915, all teachers in Wisconsin must have at least one year of professional experience, before working for high-grade certificates, before entering this summer course, has held down materially the enrollment at the Rock County summer session. With these conditions prevailing, Principal Frank J. Lowth is expecting that a record number of students will enroll in the fall to commence the regular work at the teachers' training school. There are three instructors in the school this summer, Superintendent H. C. Buell, Principal F. J. Lowth, and Miss Louise Jacobson, of the Delavan high school teaching force. Superintendent Buell is giving instruction in first grade work, or in the following studies: physical geography, English, history, physics and English literature. Principal Lowth is taking charge of the professional work, teaching methods, geography, rural school and civics. The second grade work is being taught by Miss Jacobson. She is giving instruction in arithmetic, algebra, American literature, music, construction and English composition.
The summer session will close on July the 30th, giving just six weeks of instruction. During the past several weeks Principal Lowth and County Superintendent C. O. Anderson have secured speakers of reputation to give lectures at various dates during the next six weeks. Principal C. F. Hill of the Industrial school, this city, will give an illustrated talk on book-binding. He recently invented a novel book-binder for the home. Dr. Frost of Wisconsin university will spend a week in the city, giving a lecture every day under the general subject, "Rural Sanitation." He will illustrate his talk with slides. Professor James of the state university, agriculture department, will lecture on Friday morning here lecturing to the students on corn, weeds and grains. A representative from the state anti-tuberculosis society is on the slate to appear here with four lectures on health, probably the first week in July. On July the 29th, Professor Lane of Washington, D. C., chief field specialist of the agricultural department will address the students.
The students now taking work at the summer school are working only for a high-grade certificate. All of whom have had at least one year of professional experience. Teaching There are no novices. Special emphasis will be laid on the hand-work, basket-weaving, paper cutting, raffia work and manual training work during the summer. The first of the time to the regular course of study.

EARLY CELEBRATING STRICTLY TABOOED

Chief Champion Quotes Law to Several Youths, Warning Them for Setting Off Explosives.
Upon the provisions of the city ordinance the firing of explosives is prohibited within the city limits, and "laid down the law" to several young men who were taken into custody for the discharging of fireworks last night. Two were brought to the station and referred to the chief this morning for setting off fireworks last evening.
The ordinance prevents unnecessary noises previous to the celebration of the Fourth of July. Chief Champion found that several Monterey youths had been firing sky-rockets at passing autos and warning was given to stop the practice.

WOMEN'S CLUB PICNIC UP RIVER THURSDAY

Members of the Congregational Women's club will enjoy a picnic tomorrow at the Burr cottage near Crystal Springs. The party will leave at ten o'clock. It is requested of those who plan attending, to bring their dinner and such dishes as will be required.

H. L. McCURE'S FATHER'S HOME DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Theophilus McCure, father of Harry L. McCure, head of the dining car service of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Omaha railroad, died Sunday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Holly, in Chicago. The remains were taken to Washington, D. C., where burial was made today, in Arlington cemetery.

A GOOD THING

When it Comes Along Don't Let it Get Away From You.

"I really feel that it is hardly possible to say too much in favor of Grape-Nuts as a health food," writes a Chicago lady.
"For 9 or 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and chronic constipation, caused by the continued use of coffee and rich, heavy foods. My ailments made my life so wretched that I was eager to try anything that held out a promise of help. And that is how I happened to buy a package of Grape-Nuts food last spring.
That ended my experiments. For in Grape-Nuts I found exactly what I wanted and needed. From the day I began to use it I noticed an improvement and in a very few weeks I found my health was being restored.
"My digestive apparatus now works perfectly and chronic constipation has been entirely relieved. I have gained in weight materially, and life is a very pleasant thing to me so long as I use Grape-Nuts once or twice a day. I have found by experiment that if I leave it off for a few days my health suffers.
"A physician in our town has great success in treating stomach troubles, and the secret of it is that he puts his patient on Grape-Nuts food—it always brings back the power of digestion."
Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Safety First

Chicago & Northwestern R. R. Harvey Lindley is easily the hero of the round house yards, for the brilliant work he displays at the railroad yard last Monday afternoon. Harvey lammed out a homer, right when it was time and brought in another man besides himself. He has joined forces with the Northwest and has assumed the official duties.

John Ruet, fire box cleaner, who has not been at work for several weeks on account of an injured foot is back at his work. It will be remembered that he had the misfortune to mash his foot a few weeks ago.

General Boiler Inspector T. Powers of Chicago, called at the shops today.

The baseball team underwent another strenuous practice Tuesday evening, in an earnest effort to climb in the Commercial league before the end of the season. The late victory has given the team nothing to work on, and they are ably backed by the entire employee force.

The store house is being re-painted and re-decorated. Fred Barch is the artist. They are standing and re-arranging some of the bins.

M. J. McDermott, day boiler maker, who has been relieving the night boiler maker for few nights is back on the day shift.

Ray Meyers of the B. & B. department, is the proud father of a nine pound girl. Nothing but a healthy child is reported to be doing very nicely.

James Cummings and Joseph Smith were Chicago visitors over last Sunday.

The car department has resumed its ten hour a day schedule, after a period, trying the new schedule.

Seventy-five bad order box cars have been received from Chicago to be repaired. They arrived Sunday.

Edward Courtney, of the round house, is the proud father of a thirteen pound girl, which is reported as doing fine as well as Mrs. Courtney.

The local Safety First Committee met Monday morning. Nothing of importance was discussed, outside of the regular business.

Fred Barch spent the week end with his relatives at Kaukauna.

Charles Howard, formerly purchasing agent, died in Chicago on June 13, at the age of 77 years. Mr. Howard was born on October 15, 1837, entered railway service in 1879 with the Chicago & Northwestern, and was purchasing agent for many years.

A pamphlet has been printed by the Baltimore office for circulation among employees in all departments of the service for the general benefit. It consists of five articles on the subject of railway sanitation by Dr. M. Parlett, a teaching from the Baltimore & Ohio Employe's Magazine. Dr. Parlett is a member of the General Safety Committee of the road. These essays include one dealing in detail with the sanitation of construction camps and another on typhoid fever and its conquest.

C. M. & St. P. Engineer Kunn has taken a leave of absence until the first of August.

Engineer Falter pulled the special from Beloit to Monroe Sunday, carrying the Woodmen of the World.

Machinist Whittemyer is planning a trip to different points in Missouri and Arkansas.

Machinist Lee and Neave, will soon leave for the western trip. Their hope to make Seattle their main point of destination.

Machinist Whittemyer is now learning to run a short time ago took a half day or a short time ago to get his first lesson.

Engineer Thomas Fox, who witnessed the baseball game last Saturday between the Y. M. C. A. and the railroad, was very much enthused and declares he will not miss another during the entire season.

The railroad department of the Young Men's Christian Association is establishing a railroad school in its recently completed college for the training of secretaries at Chicago. This course will be under the direction of leading railroad Y. M. C. A. secretaries, with W. N. Northcott, executive secretary of the railroad associations of Chicago, as dean. The purpose of the course is to train men to become secretaries of the road branches. This department of the school will begin its work next October.

St. Paul, Minn.—In addition to the 250-ft. counter-balanced swing span of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha bridge, noted in the Railway Age Gazette, June 11, there are one 100-ft. deck plate girder, and one 100-ft. deck plate girder, requiring a total of 1,150 tons of steel. The contract for fabricating the girder spans was awarded to the Chicago Bridge & Iron Works, Chicago, Ill., and for the construction was awarded to Guthrie & Company, St. Paul, Minn.—A total of 2,774 cu. yd. of concrete, 45,898 ft. B. M. of timbers and 8,548 lines ft. of piling are required. The total estimated cost is $225,000.

A great deal of attention has lately been given to plans for the rebuilding of Belgium. The country has been little talk of the future of the Belgian railways, a matter which will also have to be taken in hand. The Belgians themselves destroyed points and signals, and bridges as much as possible in order to render the lines useless to the Germans. It is improbable that much further damage has been done since the German occupation, but it may be taken for granted that when the German army is forced to evacuate Belgium, it will inflict as much destruction as possible, out of vindictiveness, as well as for the purely strategic reasons of always having a retreating army to cut the lines of communication at its rear.

MONTEREY STARS WIN DOUBLE HEADER FROM TEAMS AT CRYSTALS

The Monterey Stars won a double-header yesterday at Crystal Springs Park by defeating the St. Paul's Lutheran school nine by a score of 16 to 6, and the Y. M. C. A. team by a score of 10 to 2. The battery for the Lutherans was Hammond and Bloedel. The Y. M. C. A. had Munson on the mound, but he was driven over the box and Navock finished the game. C. Bick and Lentz constituted the Stars' battery for the 18 innings. The Stars challenge any team under fifteen years of age.

ASK WOMEN TO AID LIGHTING CAMPAIGN

Commissioners of Civic League Indorse Commercial Club's Project And Ask Women to Sign Petitions.

Commissioners of the Civic League in a statement today, indorse the Commercial Club's project for improved street lighting for Janesville and urge all women of the city to lend their support to the cause by signing petitions which will be presented to the mayor and city councilmen. Petitions have been left at the Nichols Department store on South Main street and will be held open for several days.

The women of the city, many of them taxpayers, are taking lively interest in the lighting campaign and had it not been for the fact that the civic league has practically discontinued its operations until all according to the plan followed out last year, it is probable that the members would have become more actively interested and would have aided in circulating the petitions.

Following is the statement of the commissioners:

To all members of The Civic League:—
The commissioners of the Civic League heartily endorse the movement for a better and more comprehensive lighting system as proposed by the Commercial Club and earnestly request every Civic League member to call at Nichols Department Store before the end of this week, and sign the petitions addressed to the mayor and council, so that they may have an expression from this organization on this much needed civic improvement.

Signed:—
Mrs. J. S. Taylor,
Miss Percy Ranger,
Miss Sarah Richardson,

FIRST FIELD DAY IS GREAT SUCCESS

Over 350 People Gather at Rock Prairie to Participate in Community Games.

Over three hundred and fifty people gathered yesterday at Rock Prairie to participate in and witness the first annual community field day. The Rock County people, together with the program of games and good picnic dinner, made the gathering one of the most enjoyable ever held in the county.

The first event of the day was the baseball game between the fathers and sons, in which age bowed to victory and the boys carried away the victory. The young men's team spread was enjoyed about twelve o'clock, and all events were held up pending the finishing of the mid-day repast.

After the dinner, a game of volleyball was played between two girls teams and the team captained by Miss Manila Powers of Janesville, won the victory. The farmers played two games, the Commercial club team in the city ball and although new at the game, proved too much for the city men and defeated them twice, thereby securing a surprising victory. They are in the division. Following the volleyball games, there were numerous bag and relay races for the younger children. Then the outdoor indoor baseball game was put on for the younger boys.

The grand wind-up of the afternoon was a baseball game between the Rock Prairie Y. M. C. A. team and the Y. M. C. A. team. The former proved its supremacy and defeated its rivals by 6 to 4. Batteries for Rock Prairie were Lamb and Hadden, and for Fulton, Allison and Evans. The game was a large delegation from different points there to attend the games, and the local delegation was much larger than was expected. Janesville sent out a crowd of thirty or more, a result of the efforts of J. A. Craig and R. E. Wisner. There were also people present from: Shopiere, Hanover and Edgerton.

FRANCE IN EXCELLENT HEALTH REPORTS SHOW

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Paris, June 23—France is in excellent health. None of the epidemics dreaded with the coming of hot weather have developed. There were 839 deaths in Paris last week as against 919 the preceding week and 842 the average for this season of the year. Typhoid fever, the most dreaded of all diseases, made only three victims. Reports from points where soldiers are concentrated and where there were a great many cases during the winter show that the epidemic is abating.

LOUISIANA'S CAPITAL.

One of the echoes of the "carpet bagger" regime of the period just preceding the civil war is developing in Louisiana with the approach of the coming constitutional convention. While the state of Louisiana today does not comprise one small part of the vast territory that comprised the French grant that Napoleon sold the United States for a song over a century ago, still it has been the scene of many turbulent periods in the history of this country.

One of the states that joined in the war of secession, the Crescent City, New Orleans, held the key to the Mississippi situation and was the scene of bitter fighting. Later came the "carpet baggers" and their regime, but the damage brought about by the struggle between the north and south for so many years, is being repaired.

But Louisiana has played other important parts in our history and the great battle in which Andrew Jackson defeated the English host, the picked men of the Napoleon wars, with his backwoods riflemen, behind walls of cotton bales, has endeared this country in the hearts of Americans. But now the coming constitutional convention will discuss the possible change of the location of the state capital.

The Christian Science Monitor, writing on this question, says: "People familiar with the history of Louisiana will probably be surprised to learn that the capital has done considerable wandering in the past. Under Spanish, French and American domination, New Orleans was the capital of Louisiana for about a century and a half. The capital was located at other times at Donaldsonville, Shreveport, Baton Rouge and several other places. The civil war had much to do with its unsteadiness. Baton Rouge is now the capital. The original state house was erected there in 1822. It was destroyed by the reds and for several years its whitened walls formed one of the picturesque landmarks of the lower Mississippi. The structure was built in 1822. In the interim the St. Louis hotel in New Orleans was the state house, and here were located the various governments belonging to the 'carpet bag' and reconstruction era.

"It appears that for many years New Orleans was regarded by the rest of the states as the most undesirable place for the seat of government. We read that the convention of 1845 was so hostile in this respect that the constitution it submitted to the electorate provided that the capital should never be less than sixty miles from the city of New Orleans by the nearest traveling route and if on the Mississippi by the meanders of the same.

Even in later years, and down to the present day, there is a strong element in Louisiana that is opposed to its chief city as the center of political activity. A rider was attached to the call of the general assembly of 1898 that prohibited the convention from considering a change in the location of the capital. A repetition of this is threatened now, and the belief obtains that New Orleans will attempt to deprive Baton Rouge of its principal distinction. Of course, all riders limiting the power of the people in the matter of adopting a constitution are themselves unconstitutional. Undoubtedly, the constitutional convention cannot be prohibited by the legislature from submitting any provision of its liking, nor can the people be deprived of the right to vote for or against any provision submitted. It does not appear, on the surface at least, that New Orleans wishes to be the state capital, and it is only fair to say that it seems to be far more interested at present in the development of commerce and strength than in regaining political prestige."

REPUBLICAN DIPLOMACY.
 There is a reason why the present diplomatic correspondence of the state department should be based on sound international lines. The basis of a great proportion of it, especially that which deals with critical questions, is furnished by John W. Foster. For many years he has been in touch with foreign matters, and has been a part of many of them. He was our minister to Spain and was secretary of state under President Harrison. He is the author and negotiator of many trade treaties, and has written many volumes on diplomatic subjects. He is the father-in-law of Robert Lansing, the man who has done so well as counselor of the state department, and who now becomes acting secretary. Mr. Lansing is not only a cool-headed, well-poised official, but he has great respect for his father-in-law's opinion on diplomatic subjects. They live in the same house in Washington, and all through the present situation Mr. Lansing has had the advantage of Mr. Foster's advice and counsel, and from this he has profited greatly. Moreover, it was under republican administrations that Mr. Lansing was connected with the state department when he obtained his knowledge of diplomatic usage which is now standing him in such good stead. So the real diplomacy that is being used at present is distinctly of the republican brand.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.
 The "Falmouth Outlook prints the following that is stranger than fiction to owners of some country newspapers.

"A country editor wrote to a catalog house for some advertising. They replied that they would be glad to use his space but would like to know what territory his paper covered, whereupon he told them: 'This paper goes from New York to San Francisco, from Canada to the Gulf, and it keeps me working until 2 o'clock in the morning to keep it from going to hell.'"

When Italy entered the war on the side of the allies it was freely predicted that the beginning of the end was at hand. Instead of that we learn from dispatches that the Germans have raided England, France and Belgium, and the Austrians are holding the railroads, while the Russians are finding out that even with their millions of soldiers they must give ground.

Our only war journalist, all reports to the contrary, is William Jennings Bryan. His objections to signing one of the most pacific and nearest diplomatic notes to a foreign power standing with a chip on its shoulder looking for trouble and his bitter denunciation of the entire situation, marks him as of a belligerent nature.

It is no use of the democrats to plead the war makes high prices in the living schedule when it is cheaper to buy a good dinner in Berlin or London than in New York or Chicago. This war talk has saved the democrats lots of trouble, but it can no longer be used as a legitimate excuse.

The state senate is having lots of fun these days voting against measures that have passed the assembly with flying colors. The senate is no respecter of persons when it comes to killing a bill or even passing a suffrage measure.

It is barely possible that if some violent outsider took a hand in the Mexican situation peace might be restored. But in the United States at the present time ready to undertake the job after two years of watchful waiting?

Carranza's reputation as depicted in the picture of whiskers, and his real personality are two different and distinct reputations. He should either cut off his benign whiskers or live up to the reputation they give him.

If anyone has really noticed the arrival of summer they should make the fact known officially so that the average citizen may know that summer is "really came" at last.

Labor unions win a victory through the La Follette Seamen's bill, but so did the farmer who prevented bad boys from stealing apples in his orchard cut down the trees.

Shooting the ferocious clay pigeon is one way of preparing the citizens of the United States for military service.

As diplomats the Berlin government are great military men. Time will tell if they reach the second stage.

SNAP SHOTS

The way of the average community is to worry a man into his grave by unjust abuse, and then put in the subsequent five years telling what a good man he was.

Politeness is the result of restraint imposed by civilization. The first impulse of every person is to be impolite.

When farmers laugh at a town man it generally is because of his inability to hitch up a horse.

After a man is fifty you can fool him by saying he is smart, but you can't fool him by saying he is handsome.

A man doesn't wish to hear your opinion unless it coincides with his own.

An unmarried woman begins to have a good time as soon as she quits hoping.

"Buzz" Hopgood generally is regarded as the biggest fool in our town. When "Buzz" bought the drug store of Amasa Brunt the first order he gave a traveling man was for one hundred thousand mandolin strings.

Buck Kilby, who is of a statistical turn of mind, says, roughly speaking, that it takes two thousand fools properly to support a clairvoyant.

The temptation to which women most frequently succumb is dry goods.

A colored man's idea of a triumph is to be able to ask his friends to change a $100 bill for him.

 Hoarded your lyddite and polished the blades.
 Let down upon us this blistering blight.
 You who played grandly the easiest game.
 Now can you shoulder the weight of the same?

Say can YOU fight?
 This is your game: it was none of our choosing—
 We are the pawns with whom you have played.

WAR HAS A DECIDED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 London, June 23.—The war is exercising a decidedly democrat influence on the manners, customs, and habits of English folk, who are commonly regarded as belonging to the big "S" section of society. Before the war it was considered most undignified for anybody with any pretensions to gentility to be seen carrying a parcel in public. ashamedly carrying parcels in Piccadilly or Regent street with an air which implies the proud consciousness that they are setting a good example.

They are, in fact, responding to an appeal to shoppers which has been issued by the Home Office through its Distributing Trade Committee. The shoppers were requested:

"To shop early;
 'Not to expect immediate service;
 'To carry home parcels;
 'To give more time for the execution of orders.

The reason for this appeal is that so many shop assistants have abandoned service behind the counter to serve their country in the field, that all the big shops are short-handed and have had to take on a lot of untrained help.

NIGHTS MAY BE SHORT
 BUT BIG ON BROADWAY

New York, June 22.—As yesterday was the longest day in the year, it naturally follows that last night was the shortest night. That didn't keep it from being a big one, however, for many folks along Broadway. The usual crowds were out and were still out early this morning.

The summer resorts have lured away many who spent their winter nights lounging and trotting, but wherever there is an ice slick floor bounded on three sides by tables and on the fourth by an orchestra and a perspiring crowd of lively dancers. Some of the dancers are more lively

RUNS FROM MILTON TO JAIL AT NIGHT

John Pfeiffer Who it is Believed Was Not in Right Mind Makes Queer Claims.

When Sheriff Chamberlain opened the big iron door at the county jail about three o'clock this morning in answer to incessant ringing of the bell, a man, who proved to be John Pfeiffer, a blacksmith of Milton, almost fell at his feet from complete exhaustion.

Gasping for breath the man managed to inform the county jail warden that a mob was going to hang him for being a German spy at Milton last night.

When quizzed Pfeiffer was cared for and relatives notified who were to come and take the Milton man home today. It appeared that Pfeiffer had run all the way from Milton, purely across country, a distance of eight miles during the early morning hours. A week ago Pfeiffer told the jail men that he was sure people accused him of being a German spy and attention was drawn to the case by the sheriff. It is believed the man is suffering from a mental collapse and he entertains the idea he is being watched by his fellow citizens.

ILLUMINATION PLAN FINDS GOOD BACKING

Over Eleven Hundred Names Secured on Petitions—Finish Campaign This Afternoon.

Members of the Commercial club light boosters' committee held a session this noon. After dinner at the city hotel the total lists of names on their petitions were compiled. At that time there was an aggregate of 1,100 signatures on the lists.

Expectations were that the entire city will have been covered by nightfall and the campaign closed. Close to 600 names are expected to be added to the petitions carried by the committee fifteen in their work this afternoon.

See the Rockford Maroons play next Sunday afternoon.

COUNTY SCHOOL MEN MEET HERE FRIDAY

District Clerks and Board Members to Hold 1915 Meeting This Week. Supt. Cary to Speak.

The annual meeting of the Rock county school board will be held in Janesville on Friday. The sessions will be held at the high school. During the 1914 convention, the body voted almost unanimously to hold this year's meeting late in June. Despite the fact that rainy weather has delayed work for the farmers, County Superintendent C. D. Antidel looks forward to a large attendance.

A large number of teachers will be present and districts with a vacancy will have an excellent opportunity for secure instructors for their schools at the meeting. Important school questions will be considered, many at the present time being before the board for consideration.

The State Superintendent of Education, C. P. Cary will be the principal event of the day.

The program for the meeting is appended:

9:30 A. M.
Music by Summer School and Convention.

Questions and Answers.
Cooperation, Prin. F. J. Lowth.

Beautifying School Grounds, Rev. Henry Willmann and Edward Amerpoth.

School Sanitation, W. E. Larson, rural school inspector.

1:15 P. M.
Music.

Questions and Answers, Consolidation, Boundary Changes, etc.

New School Laws, General Discussion.

Rebinding Books, with samples of work, W. E. Clinton.

Teaching Reading, W. E. Larson.

Address, C. P. Cary, state superintendent.

During the afternoon the county board of education will meet in a separate room to give people a chance to talk with them on any questions connected with school work.

During the afternoon the county school officers will also meet for a time in a separate room, to discuss text books, and other topics of interest to them.

NO HALT IN ADVANCE OF COST OF LIVING THROUGHOUT ENGLAND

London, June 23.—There is no halt in the advance in the cost of living in England. The index figure in the London Statist show that the average increase in prices of food-stuffs since the beginning of the war is 43 per cent. This represents an increase of about a billion dollars in the sum expended for food since August 1.

The disconcerting thing about these figures to the English student of statistics is that the greater part of the profit from higher prices will accrue to farmers in foreign countries, whereas a hundred years ago, during the Napoleonic wars, practically the whole of the advantage of the high prices then current was reaped by British farmers and landowners.

In normal times, a great rise in prices checks consumption, but so far as England is concerned the present advance has failed to do this, the enormous war expenditure having brought much additional income to the industrial classes, with the result that the purchasing power of the mass of people has increased more than sufficiently to provide for the advance in the cost of living. Consequently, there has been no reduction in consumption.

In fact, the consumption of food in recent months has shown expansion rather than contraction.

Ladies free at ball game Sunday.

Household Hint

TWO WAYS OF SAVING.
Some people are extravagant about little things and saving about big things. Others are saving in small ways but will spend for large things. George Ade has a most true to life fable about the couple who couldn't understand why they didn't save money. The wife said she occasionally spent money for something worth while like a diamond necklace, but she never bought any more of the things; while the husband said that he never gave away more than five cents for his cigars as a gentleman should, but he was very economical about such things as automobiles and race horses.

In the same way some people give generously in little ways but seldom give large gifts, and others who are almost stingy about little things will astonish everyone by giving lavishly on state occasions.

Dutch Treat in Little Things.
I know a girl who was very exact about dividing all small expenses. When she went to the theatre or when she dropped in for a college ice with a group of girls, she always wanted to go Dutch treat. She never, by any chance, paid anyone's car fare, she was ready to pay her share of the box of candy but never to stand treat. In short she was just but not generous about little things. And yet, when it came to wedding or birthday presents she was the most generous girl you can imagine. She gave not just something to cover the occasion and pay her entrance fee to the wedding, but something really beautiful and desirable. And she was always ready to give a taste and money.

On the other hand, I have known people who found it easy to be generous in the little ways but always trimmed their sails as close as possible in the bigger giving.

Each Type Criticising the Other.
Each type is inclined to criticize the other, which is, of course, very foolish. One of the two ways seems the better to me just because it is my way, but I know very well that I am no more right than the people who feel differently, and that I have no more reason to criticize them than they me.

There is one class of generous givers, however, who do deserve criticism. And that is the people who are generous in their charities but always try to grind down those who work for them to the very last penny.

Stinting the Washerwoman to Give to Charity.
I know a woman whose name often appears with comfortable donations on subscription lists. I should think her a model of generosity if I did not happen to know one or two things. One is that she always tries to keep her dressmaker an extra half hour or so and drives her so hard that she is utterly exhausted. Another is that she pays her washerwoman less per hour than anyone else in the neighborhood.

(Charity) without justice is like an elaborate house without any foundation. When we stint labor on our side with our hand and give to charity with the other, we are not giving of our own. We are stealing from labor to give to Paul. And that is meant both for the woman who underpays her seamstress and heads the subscription list and for the man who keeps his workers on a death in life wage and gives millions to charities.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if you think I will ever get married. I am looking for a young woman who does not read novels, so to theaters, play cards, dance, and in the semi-modern styles. She must not have a high heel shoe on her feet, a complexion from cans and boxes. She must love children more than people do. She must not be one who spends most of her time on a piano, but she must not be popular among tipplers and cigar sucking dudes. She must not have a shoddy character beneath her costly clothes and subtle cheap perfume and coquettish manner that belongs to a REAL WOMAN.

On the other hand, she must be fairly well educated, knowing how to make a decent batch of bread, to sew on a patch or pull the feathers off a fowl. One who knows what "Fortissimo" means on a wash-board as well as piano.

Mr. am I looking for an angel. Please do not so misconstrue my motives. This is but an attempt to depict a real woman. There surely must be a few of them left. But where are they?

Echo answers "Where?" OSCAR.

If you are able to offer equal qualities. Oscar, you ought to be able to find such a girl for a wife. The ideal girl is almost as rare as the ideal young man, but there are still many modest, sensible, home-loving girls in spite of the showy parade by the other kind. Be patient, don't be too cynical, and be sure that you are worthy of her whom you seek.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was going with a very nice boy a year older than myself and introduced him to my girl friend. She is very pretty and I am considered so also. This girl friend can be funny all the time and so can the boy, but I am quiet and would rather talk sense than foolishness. For a while after I had introduced my friends the boy continued to come to see me, but then he began to call on my friend, too. I didn't care much then because I did not love the boy. But I did care when he took my girl friend to a school picnic a short time ago. Do you think it was right for him to do so when he had been going with me? I introduced him to the other girl? Last night he called me up again and asked to come over. It has been three weeks since he asked to come last. I told him that was sorry but I had a date. He said he would phone later. I didn't really have a date. I only thought it would be better to ask your advice before I let him come back to my house. Would you advise me to be friendly with him still?

FLORENCE L.

As long as the boy was not engaged to her he had a perfect right to take her to a picnic. Certainly let him call again. If you want him for a friend. Since you do not care for him seriously, I should think you would be glad that he does not devote all of his time to you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My brother has a camera. Would there be any harm in having my picture taken with one of his boy chums who is here on a visit?

(2) Is there any harm in riding a bicycle; also a motorcycle?

THANK YOU.

(1) No.

(2) A girl on a motorcycle is too conspicuous, and a large girl on a bicycle looks eccentric. There is nothing morally wrong in riding them.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Oh, daddy, Fred Joplin just phoned and asked to come out. I thought we were going to have such a quiet evening with Dr. Ellison and Nell. Olive's tone was regretful.

"I shall have undisputed possession of the doctor in that case; that will keep me interested. Joplin, for some cause, is devoted to me to any extent. There was a wicked twinkle in Mr. Dunn's eyes.

"Comfort yourself, girl; lead this fine young man in ways of pleasantness."

"Instead, I want to be lead while my self, not added to the responsibility of someone's happiness all the time," replied the girl.

As it turned out, the young man seemed in need of guidance, if he was to be happy. So, lost in gloom was he, when he discovered the doctor was a guest in the house. They had met at Fairport and the doctor was a familiar enough figure about town. Not until he received the anonymous letter telling him that a plot was on foot to marry Olive to the doctor did it occur to him that he could be a rival. The fact that he was a forced man but here he was, evidently a welcome guest. It was evident that Mr. Dunn was enjoying his sallies of wit and humor and Olive's attention seemed always to be on what they were saying.

The doctor excused himself early to make the night train to Chicago, that he might hear some of the prominent speakers at the medical convention, and Nell said she must get back to her baby, so they left together.

"How did he happen to come to Detroit to attend a convention at once?"

SUFFRAGE QUESTION NOW STIRS JAPAN

Prominence of Jap Women in Politics Causes Considerable Discussion Among People.

(By Associated Press.)

Tokio, June 22.—The prominence of women in the recent election campaign has started a great deal of discussion on all sides. Some parliamentarians who are pronouncedly against woman suffrage talked of introducing a bill prohibiting women from taking part in campaign canvassing. The law already prohibits women from taking active part in political meetings or discussions or joining political societies.

Viscount Oura, the minister of the interior, touched upon the woman question when summing up in an address his impressions of the general election. First, said the minister, abstentions from voting were fewer than in preceding elections. In the election of 1912, abstentions amounted to 10 per cent of the voters. The rate in this election came down to 8 per cent, contrary to the expectation that the more rigid control exercised by the authorities would increase abstentions. Secondly, violations of the election law were also fewer, the number being 4,200 against 5,900 in the preceding election. Thirdly, there was an alarming increase in the number of women taking part in the campaign. This might be taken as a prelude to women's suffrage, he thought.

Referring to the suffragettes in England, Viscount Oura said he was astonished when on a visit to England a few years ago to see with his own eyes the trouble they caused. Any similar agitation in Japan would require most careful consideration from the point of view of national character.

The absorbing interest in the woman question induced the Tokio Asahi to interview Mrs. Takako Kayetani, the well-known principal of the Tokio Girls Commercial School, who has devoted her life to the education of Japanese women.

If the home department proposed to prevent women from taking part in campaigns, it would be too cruel, Mrs. Kayetani said, to tolerate that women. She did not believe that Japanese women, whose national habits and customs were different from those of their sisters in England, would imitate their agitators. Japanese women who were educated and had a sense of duty would refrain from following the example of their foreign sisters. She strongly believed, however, that women must keep pace with political thought. Japanese women were angry at being prohibited from attending political meetings.

Women ought to know how their own country was administered and it was one of the duties of women to cultivate political knowledge among themselves. The wife of a politician must advance to such a stage in political knowledge as not only to understand the thoughts of her husband, but to discuss politics with him and actually help him.

Mrs. Kayetani declared: "Generally speaking, women are better judges of things than men. They look at things only from one point of view, and the wife should assist her husband in making his outlook more comprehensive. The help of a wife need not be confined to household affairs. When she agrees with her husband's political views, she must assist her husband at election time."

Mrs. Kayetani did not advocate indiscriminate house-house canvassing in elections, with personal appeals to the sentiment of voters, and all the usual bowing and flattery. It would go to ignorant voters without knowing themselves the condition of the administration of their country, what the political parties were doing, or even the political views of their husbands. The ladies who resorted to such practices were badly representing their sex.

The educator concluded: "When visiting a voter in person, the lady should speak of the political views of her husband and ask the elector to vote accordingly. The personal visit should be strictly limited to an appeal to the intelligence."

Household Hints

WINDOW CLEANER.

A reader says she has found that a bag filled with powdered pumice stone is an excellent window cleaner. She makes the bag of unbleached cotton cloth of a soft quality, not too firm. When finished the bag is six inches wide and twelve inches long. Into this she puts about one-eighth of a pound of the pumice stone. To prevent soiling this bag it is slipped into a cheesecloth case that can be removed and washed. No water is used on the window, but it is rubbed first with a piece of tissue paper, then polished with the bag.

GINGHAMS FOR CHILDREN.

The new gingham are great favorites for children's dresses. Plaid predominates, while the decided blue and white and the red and white are in evidence, black and white is very popular, partly due to the fact that this plaid launders well and is a dressy combination.

THE TABLE.

Watercress Sandwiches.—Some watercress, hard-boiled eggs, bread (rye preferred) and butter, juice of lemon. Wash well some watercress and then dry them in a cloth, pressing out every atom of moisture as far as possible; then mix with the cress hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine and seasoned with salt and pepper. Have a stale loaf of bread (rye preferred) and some fresh butter, and with a sharp knife cut as many thin slices as will be required for two dozen sandwiches; then cut the cress into small pieces, removing the stems; place it between each slice of bread and butter, with a slight sprinkling of lemon juice; press down the slices hard and cut them sharply on a board into small squares, leaving no crust.

Spring Vegetable Soup.—Half pint green peas, two shredded lettuce, onion, a small bunch of parsley, two ounces butter, yolks of three eggs, one pint of water, one and a half quarts of soup stock. Put in a stew pan with one pint of water and let them simmer till tender. Season with salt and pepper. When done strain off the vegetables and put two-thirds of the liquor with the stock. Beat up the yolks of the eggs with the other third, pour over the fire and at the moment of serving add this with the vegetables to the strained-off soup.

Peas in Turnip Cups.—Steam fine even sized turnips until tender, hollow out a small piece from the top of each to form cup. Season with salt and pepper. Have ready creamed peas—green or canned—and fill the turnip cups with them. Serve hot. A sprinkling of chopped parsley over the peas and a spray of parsley on the serving dish adds to the appearance.

Neufchatel Salad.—Place on a dish some crisp lettuce leaves, then grated cheese or slices, and over this chopped olives. At last comes a dressing of one teaspoon of vinegar, two teaspoons of olive oil, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, a few grains of pepper and a few drops of lemon juice.

Cream Puffs.—Melt four level tablespoons butter in one-half cup boiling water in a sauce pan, add one cup sifted flour, cook till mixture leaves sides of pans. Remove from fire, cool by beating. When cold beat in one at a time two unbeaten eggs. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet. Bake from 25 to 30 minutes. When cold split, fill filling. Mix four level tablespoons of cornstarch with four tablespoons of sugar. Pour into this stirring constantly a few drops of milk. Cook in double boiler 20 minutes, add two egg yolks, cook till thickened, then add one teaspoon vanilla.

Read the want ads. carefully. The bargain you are looking for may be there.

BLOOD RELATIONS

IN DEATH GRAPPLE

Warring European Monarchs Are All Closely Related.

The King of England and the Czar of Russia are first cousins, and each of these monarchs is cousin to the Emperor of Germany. The King of war-ridden Belgium is both a cousin to the King of England and the Emperor of Germany.

The Emperor of Austria, aged Franz Joseph, is a cousin to the King of Spain, who is related by marriage to the Czar. All down through the nobility are to be found blood ties which have been cast to the winds in the titanic struggle for mastery.

It has been stated that it is not a war of the peoples, but a war of the monarchs, and family relationship most certainly precludes any idea of a permanent peace begotten of altruism.

President Wilson has said that wars will only cease when men love each other more and the example thus set by the monarchs of Europe of hatred, envy and covetousness most certainly precludes any idea of a permanent peace begotten of altruism.

But Kingly Affairs or Affairs of State, for in Europe the monarch is the state, seem to become impersonal, and relationships between monarchs represents as little today as it did when Napoleon's Austrian father-in-law aided England and Germany to efface the "Little Corporal" from Europe politics.

The relationship between these ruling houses, however, forms an interesting phase of the situation in Europe today, and nowhere can a better account of this and a thousand other important sidelights on the present struggle be found than in "The Nations at War."

This historic volume, the first to be produced from an authoritative source, covers not only the relationship between the warring nations, but also gives a complete record, both written and pictured, of every detail during the first six months.

The Gazette secured a large edition of this original work, and offers the book to its readers for 98 cents, which merely represents the expense incidental to copyright rights and handling charges. This offer will remain open until every reader is supplied.

His Immediate Necessity.

FREE To every person that solves the above puzzle, the piano manufacturers who control and are distributing this advertising appropriation, will give absolutely FREE, the choice of the following valuable premiums: Ladies' Bar Pin, Jewel Case, Kitchen Set, Prescut Glass Dish; also a Bonafide Manufacturers' Credit Voucher for $105, good only on any new piano in our store. For many years piano manufacturers have tried to reduce the selling expense to pianos. The old way of paying solicitors, paying teachers' commissions and engaging great artists to play their pianos at fabulous sums are being eliminated and now it is the question of the best advertised piano and one in which the purchasers are given the greatest possible value. This is the age of co-operation and the manufacturers correctly believe that the best way to market and introduce their product is to spend the advertising money in making special offers for the people rather than employing world-famous demonstrators at fabulous expenses and making the people pay for such methods by asking a heavily inflated price for the piano.

CHAPTER XIX.

Pifalls.

Within a week from the day when Raymer, angrily jubilant, had rescued his imperiled stock, it was pretty generally known that Kenneth Griswold, the writing man, had become the fourth member in the close corporation of the Raymer Foundry and Machine works, and Wabaska was eagerly discussing the business affair in all its possible and probable bearings upon the Raymers, the Griswolds and the newly elected directors of the Pineboro railroad.

Of all this buzzing of the gossip bees the person most acutely concerned heard little or nothing. Digging deeply in the inspiration field, Griswold speedily became oblivious to most of his encumbrances; to all of them, indeed, save those which bore directly upon the beloved task. Among these, he counted the frequent afternoon visits to Mercedes, and the scarcely less frequent evenings spent in the Parham home. He was using each of the young women as a foil for the other in the outworking of his plot; and he welcomed it as a sign of growth that the story in its new form was acquiring verisimilitude and becoming gratefully, and at times, he persuaded himself, quite vividly, human.

When he got well into the swing of it and was turning out a chapter every three or four days, he fell easily into the habit of slipping the last installment into his pocket when he went to Mercedes. Margery Griswold was adding generously to his immense obligation to her; hoping only to find a friendly listener. More than once, when his own imagination was at fault, she was able to open new vistas in the humanities for him, apparently drawing upon a reserve of intuitive conclusions compared with which his own hard-bought store of experimental knowledge was almost puerile.

"I wish you would tell me the secret of your marvelous cleverness," he exclaimed, on one of the June afternoons when he had been reading to her in the cool half-shadows of the Mercedes library. "You are only a child in years; how can you know with such meticulous certainty what other people would think and do under conditions about which you can't possibly know anything experimentally? It's beyond me!"

"There are many things beyond you yet, dear boy; many, many things," was her laughing rejoinder; from which it will be inferred that the episode in the Farmers' and Merchants' bank had become an episode forgotten—or at least forgiven. "You know men—a little; but when it comes to the women—well, if I didn't keep continually nagging at you, your two heroines—with neither of whom you are really in love—would degenerate into rag dolls. They would, actually."

"That's true; I can see it clearly enough when you point it out," he admitted, putting his craftsman's pride underfoot, as he was always obliged to do in these talks with her. "I should be discouraged if you didn't keep on telling me that the story, as a story, is good."

"It is good; it is a big story," she asserted, with kindling enthusiasm. "The plot, so far as you have gone with it, is fine; and that is where you are away behind. I don't see how you could ever think it out. And the character drawing is fine, too, some of it. Your Fleming is as far beyond me as your Fidelia seems to be beyond you."

"You don't know Fleming yet. Have you ever met Fidelia?"

"Not as you have drawn her—no. She is too unutterably fine. If she had a single shred of humanity about her, I should suspect you of meaning to fall in love with her, farther along—to the humiliation and despair of poor Joan, who, as you say, is a mere daughter of men."

"But how about Joan?" he fretted. "Is she out of drawing, too?"

"Yes; you are distorting her the other way—making her too inhumanly worldly and insincere." Then, with an abruptness that was like a slap in the face, "If you didn't spend so many evenings at Doctor Bertie's, you would get both Fidelia and Joan in better drawing."

He flushed and drew himself up, with stammered promptings to make some stinging retort contrasting the wells of truth with the brackish waters of sheer worldliness. Then he saw how inadequate it would be; how utterly impossible it was to meet this charmingly vindictive young person upon any grounds save those of her own choosing.

"That is the first really unkind thing I have ever heard you say," was the mild reproach which was all that the reactionary second thought would sanction.

"Unkind to whom?—to you, or to Miss Farnham?"

"Ask yourself," he countered weakly, and she laughed at him.

Griswold did not reply to the laugh. He was gathering up the scattered pages of his manuscript and replacing them in order. When he spoke again it was of a matter entirely irrelevant.

"I had an odd experience the other evening," he said. "I had been dining with the Raymers and was walking back to Shawnee street. A little newsboy named Johnnie Pergus turned up from somewhere at one of the street crossings and tried to sell me a paper—at eleven o'clock at night! I bought one and joked him about being out so late; and from that on I couldn't get rid of him. He went all the way home with me, talking a blue streak and acting as if he were afraid of something or somebody. I remember bered afterward that he is the boy who takes care of your boat. Is there anything wrong with him?"

Miss Griswold had left her chair and had gone to stand at one of the windows.

"Nothing that I know of," she said.

"He is a bright boy—too bright for his own good, I'm afraid. But I can explain a little. Johnnie has taken a violent fancy to you for some reason, and he has fallen into the boyish habit of weaving all sorts of romances around you. I think he reads too many exciting stories and tries to make you the hero of them. He told me the other day that he was sure somebody was 'spotting' you."

Griswold looked up quickly. Miss Griswold was still facing the window, and he was glad that she had not seen his nervous start.

"Spotting me?" he laughed. "Where did he get that idea?"

"How should I know? But he had made himself believe it; he even went so far as to describe the man. Oh, I can assure you Johnnie has an imagination; I've tested it in other ways."

"I should think so!" said the man who also had an imagination, and shortly afterward he took his leave.

An hour later the same afternoon, Broffin, from his post of observation on the Winnebago porch, saw the writing man cross the street and enter a hardware shop. Having nothing better to do, he, too, crossed the street and, in passing, looked into the open door of Simmons & Kleinfurt's. What he saw brought him back at the end of a reflective stroll around the public square.

When he entered the shop the clerk was putting a formidable array of weapons back into their showcase shelves. Broffin lounged up and began to handle the pistols.

"If I knew enough about guns to be able to tell 'em apart, I might buy one," he said, half humorously. And then: "You must 've been having a mighty particular customer—to get so many of 'em out."

"It was Mr. Griswold, Mr. Ed Ray-

mer's new partner," said the clerk. And he was pretty particular; wouldn't have anything but these new-fashioned automatics. Said he wanted something that would be quick and sure, and I guess he's got it—I sold him two of 'em."

Broffin played with the stock long enough to convince the clerk that he was only a counterfeiter with no intention of buying. "Took two of 'em, did he?" for fear one might make him sick, I reckon," he said, with the half-humorous grin still lurking under the drooping mustaches. "Automatic thirty-two, eh? Well, I ain't goin' to try to hold your Mr.—Griswold, did you call him?—up none after this. He might git me."

Whereupon, having found out what he wanted to know, he lounged out again and went back to the hotel to smoke another of the reflective cigars in the porch chair which had come to be his by right of frequent and long-continued occupancy.

Griswold had left the Mercedes library considerably shaken, not in his convictions, to be sure, but in his confidence in his own powers of imaginative analysis. For this cause it required a longer after-dinner stay at the Farnham's than he had been allowing himself, to re-establish the norm of self-assurance. Charlotte Farnham was never enthusiastic; that, perhaps, would be asking too much of an ideal; but what she lacked in warmth was made up in cool sanity, backed by a moral sense that seemed never to waver. Unerringly she placed her finger upon the human weaknesses in his book people, and unflatteringly she bade him reform them.

For his Fidelia, as he described her, she exhibited a gentle affection, tempered by a compassionate pity for her weaknesses and waverings; an attitude, he fatuously told himself, forced upon her because her own standards were so much higher than any he could delineate or conceive. For Joan there was also compassion, but it was mildly contemptuous.

"If I did not know that you are incapable of doing such a thing, I might wonder if you are not drawing your Joan from life, Mr. Griswold," she said, a little coldly, on this same evening of rehabilitations. "Since such characters are to be found in real life, I suppose they may have a place in a book. But you must not commit the unpardonable sin of making your readers condone the evil in her for the sake of the good. Please forget what I have said about your Fidelia—and your Joan. You are trying to make them human, and that is as it should be."

Griswold could scarcely believe the evidence of his senses. He told himself fiercely that he would never believe, without the conviction of fact, that the ideal could step down from its pedestal.

"You are meaning to be kind to me now, at the expense of your convictions, Miss Charlotte," he protested warmly.

"No," she denied gravely. "Listen, and you shall judge. Once, only a short time ago, I was brought face to face with one of these terrible compromises. In a single instant, and by no fault of my own, the dreadful shears of fate were thrust into my hands, and conscience—what I have been taught to call the Christian conscience—told me that with them I must snip the thread of a man's life. And then chance threw us together. A new world was opened to me in those few moments. I had thought that there could be no possible question between simple right and wrong, but almost in his first word the man convinced me that, whatever I might think or the world might say, his conscience had fully and freely acquitted him. And he proved it; proved it so that I can never doubt it as long as I live. He made me do what my conscience had been telling me I ought to do—just as your Fleming makes Fidelia do."

"And he was taken?" he said, and he strove desperately to make the saying completely colorless.

"He was; but he made his escape again, almost at once. He is still a free man."

Instantly the primitive instinct of self-preservation, the instinct of the hunted fugitive, sprang alert in the listener.

"How can you be sure of that?" he asked, and in his own ears his voice sounded like the clang of an alarm bell.

Again a silence fell, surcharged, this one, with all the old frightful possibilities. Once more the loathsome fever quickened the pulses of the man at bay, and the curious needlelike pricking of the skin came to signal the return of the homicidal fear-frenzy. The reaction to the normal racked him like the passing of a mortal sickness when his accusing angel said in her most matter-of-fact tone:

"I know he is free; I have it on the best possible authority. The detectives who are searching for him have been here to see me—or, at least, one of them has."

The hunted one laid hold of the partial reprieve with a mighty grip and drew himself out of the reactionary whirlpool.

"It is an outrage! I hope it is an annoyance past."

His companion leaned forward in her chair and cautiously parted the leafy vine screen.

"Look across the street—under those trees at the water's edge: do you see him?"

Griswold looked and was reasonably sure that he could make out the shadowy figure of a man leaning against one of the trees.

"That is my shadow," she said, lowering her voice; "Mr. Matthew Broffin of the Colburne Detective Agency, in New Orleans. He has a foolish idea that I am in communication with the man he is searching for, and he was brutal enough to tell me so. What he expects to accomplish by keeping an absurd watch upon our house and dogging everybody who comes and goes, I can't imagine."

"You have told your father?" said Griswold, anxious to learn how far this new alarm fire had spread.

"Certainly; and he has made his protest. But it doesn't do any good; the man keeps on spying, as you see. But we have wandered a long way from your book. I've been trying to prove to you that I am not fit to criticize it."

"No; you mustn't mistake me. I haven't been coming to you for criticism," was Griswold's rather incoherent reply; and when the talk threatened to lapse into the commonplace, he took his leave. Oddly enough, as he thought, when he was unlatching the gate and had shifted one of the newly purchased automatic pistols from his hip pocket to an outside pocket of the light top-coat he was wearing, the shadowy figure under the lake-shading trees had disappeared.

Dinner Stories

"Well, where's that cook?" demanded his wife. "Don't tell me that she wasn't on the train."

"She was on the train," timidly explained the commuter, "but I got to playing cards and a Lonelyville man won her at whist."

Silas Grappitt was a tight-fisted, hard-hearted old farmer. His brother William dying, Silas drove into town to have a notice about his death inserted in the weekly newspaper.

"There ain't no charges, be there?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, yes, indeed," answered the editor. "Our price is ten shillings an inch."

"Ruination!" muttered the old man. "An' Bill stood six foot two!"

A certain editor recently received from a lady some verses, faintly tied up with pink ribbon, and entitled, "I wonder if He'll Miss Me?" After reading them he returned the effort to the sender with the following note: "If he does he ought never to be trusted with firearms again."

A young couple were observed as soon as they entered a railway carriage, and immediately put down as a bridal pair. But they were remarkably self-possessed, and acted just like old married folk, so that after a short time the other passengers began to doubt their belief after all. As the train moved out, however, the young man rose to remove his overcoat and a shower of rice fell out, remarks the New York Times. The passengers smiled broadly. But even that did not affect the youth, who also smiled, and turning to his partner remarked audibly: "My goodness, May, I've brought away the bridegroom's overcoat."

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice For Thin, Underdeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs, who, having tried all the latest fashions, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the body. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. Leading druggists supply Sargol and say that there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people, unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh. Advertisement.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

The man's recovery from a severe case of lung trouble, after being expected to die, is a story of great interest. Read about it here.

"Gentlemen—I was taken sick in November, 1908. I grew steadily worse. Had severe coughing fits. The doctor said I was in a bad way. My lungs and that my case was hopeless. Only gave me six months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good. He asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. I began to improve. It was in bed from November 30, 1908, until February 26, 1909, and was thought dying several times. Now I am stronger than ever." (Abbreviated.)

Are You Pouring Water Into A Sieve?

If You Are, There's Only One Time to Stop: Right Now.

That is what Louise F. Dion, proprietor of Chicago's distinctive corset selling shop, calls all forms of advertising except the newspapers.

Eight years ago she "made her plunge" with a ground floor room in the high rent district of the loop. On another page of this paper she tells how newspaper advertising brought her success from the very first month—and how it has increased her business 30% each year over the preceding year.

She says she doesn't know of a dollar in returns that any other form of advertising has ever brought her, but that she gets them from her newspaper advertising weeks, months, and even years after it has appeared.

Whatever your field of work Miss Dion's experience is full of pertinent ideas and suggestions for you. One of them is this,

Are you pouring into less effective publicity channels, money that ought to be bringing you many times the returns you are getting in newspaper advertising?

If you are, now is the time to halt the waste.

Let us show you how to get the maximum results from the minimum advertising investment.

THIRD STORY

"We find the deceased came to his death by his own hands."

The jury coroner blinked at the speed with which his jury returned their verdict. Not that any other verdict was possible—everybody agreed as to that. A waste of time and public money—the two weeks' hearing.

President Darius Brown was dead. There could be no doubt about it. He had been respected, living; dead, he was a knave. Gunshot wound experts and the mute, mechanical witness proved the jury correct in their finding.

Expert accountants, expert sleuths, layman witnesses showed conclusively the crookedness of the late Darius Brown. But the money he had filched from the bank funds and the securities he had borrowed from the vaults had been found beside his lifeless body. Depositors had lost nothing. Future depositors had gained an honest president. Darius Brown had lost his life. So why bother?

Nodding their heads sagely with the satisfaction of "having known all along," the audience left the stuffy room. Four of that audience slipped furtively out, as though fearing something invisible was dogging their footsteps, casting a chill shadow between their shoulder blades. But that is my story—the tale of the real happenings at the Fourth National.

President Darius Brown gradually permitted a broad smile of satisfaction to overspread his face as he studied the record of his first paying teller. He waved the Pinkerton representative, with the little bundle under his arm, away, while he stared absently at the opposite wall, then pressed the annunciator and ordered the negro porter to send in Mr. Drum.

"Go to the vault, Travers, and fix up the camera," he smiled at the Pinkerton man. "I'm just taking a minute to reward a young man who has helped get enough securities into that vault to make it worth guarding."

The detective glanced keenly at the young man who answered the summons, then his lips tightened a bit. He knew the face of Joseph Drum, had seen the young man mingling with a rather fast set, had marked his presence at the Gayety stage door. He was an old-school detective who believed the leisure hours of a banking man might be better employed.

Darius Brown noticed the look, the appraisal of the sleuth, and laughed as he whirled about upon his teller.

"Looking over the books and recollecting the circumstances attendant on certain deposits," he began ponderously, "I find that you have brought a good many customers to the Fourth National, Drum. I also am agreeably reminded that you have shown good judgment in advising depositors regarding certain investments they in-

LACK OF AID MOVES HEART OF DR. WOODS

INADEQUATE SURGICAL FORCES PROMPTS JANESVILLE DOCTOR TO GO TO EUROPE.

Joins Party of American Surgeons in New York City on Similar Mission—Work in Northern France.

"Oh, I guess there is a whole lot of poor fellows over there that I can make smile," said Dr. E. F. Woods.

DR. E. F. WOODS.

Yesterday afternoon to an old friend who had come to bid him adieu upon learning of the Janesville surgeon's start this morning for work among the belligerent wounded in the hospitals of England and France.

Dr. Woods departed this morning from Janesville for New York City, where on Saturday he will sail on the liner New York for Liverpool for a period of three months in the army hospitals of England and France.

Arriving in Liverpool he will go direct to London and from there to northern France, the country, which at the present time is bearing the brunt of the fighting on the western front. Just where he will be assigned is unknown even to the doctor himself.

"I only know that the armies need surgeons and need them badly," said Dr. Woods when interviewed regarding his trip. "Medical magazines I receive weekly from England tell us periodically as they are issued, of the number of physicians and surgeons killed on the battle front. Even though these men wear the insignia of the Red Cross, stray shells and bullets often find in them a mark."

"Modern war implements have been perfected to such a degree in this war that the medical corps of the armies have proven wholly inadequate to properly administer to the wounded. I am going over there to help out in the field hospitals, but to what district I will be assigned I cannot state."

For months past Dr. Woods has been making a careful study of the nature of wounds received most by the soldiers of the allies. He has also studied the manner in which the surgeons have been treating these wounds. In this manner, in an off-hand way, he has a fairly good knowledge of the work he will be engaged in.

"In northern France," he says, "the fighting has been mostly in the trenches. Bayonet charges predominate also and the treatment of rifle salver wounds by the French and English army surgeons has been a study of great interest. There are also the wounds from the bursting of hand grenades, shrapnel, and shrapnel of splintered steel; the numerous wounds from the murderous fire from the machine guns and the torn and mangled bodies of men and arms of the soldiers so unfortunate to be struck by an enemy's shell from a big gun."

This is Dr. Woods' tenth trip abroad. He has visited and attended world congresses of surgeons in all the European countries and in England.

Woods, although not admitting himself a sympathizer of the German cause displayed so much intelligence and talked so freely regarding the operations of the Kaiser's forces that it could be freely inferred that he was pro-German at heart, although not in any case pro-German of a rabid nature. After speaking of the success of the armies of the Fatherland to date and conveying the impression that in a vague manner he looked for Germany to win, he turned to a short scientific discussion of Germany.

"We Americans have a whole lot to look up to in respect to that proverbial 'German Kultur.' In every line of science we have to take off our hats to the Germans. It is not the 'hurry up and get the long green' spirit that we Americans know so well that stands out so prominently in the German. It is his plugging that we admire. From German concentration the world has been given thousands of scientific facts. The studios spirit of this country has advanced it far above that of any other nation. Even in this war the German has again and again showed his efficiency and he will continue to do so until force of superior numbers, if such should be the case, shall force him to his knees."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON HONORED BY SERBIANS

MACHINE CO. OUTING UP-RIVER SATURDAY

Pleymakers and Families Will Enjoy Gathering at Crystal Springs This Week.

The seventeenth annual outing of the Janesville Machine company factory in office forces, their families, sweethearts and friends will be held Saturday at Crystal Springs park. The first steamer to the picnic grounds will depart at 9:30 o'clock and throughout the day an hourly schedule will be continued. A launch service will also be maintained.

A program of races and other events has been arranged and a band has been engaged to furnish concerts throughout the day. There will be dancing in the pavilion.

During the morning, a baseball game will be played between two teams composed of the factory help. In the afternoon a picked nine from the team which played during the morning will cross bats with an aggregation from the office.

COUNCIL IN REGULAR MEETING YESTERDAY

Transfer Fund from Ward Funds to General Fund for Work on Streets Done Last Year.

Routine matters came before the city council in their regular meeting held yesterday afternoon, resolutions for street improvements being passed, a petition received, besides the allowing of bills and the salary list for the officials for the month of June.

Mayor James A. Fathers announced the appointment of Harry Haggard as member of the library board to hold office during the unexpired term of the late H. W. McNamara. The appointment was confirmed by the commissioners.

The bills for city labor and material for the past two weeks amounting to $4,718.26, were allowed and orders drawn for the amounts. The appropriations from the main funds were as follows: General, $1,772.75; fire and water, $2,085.53; first ward, $137.50; second ward, $136.20; third ward, $269.05; fourth ward, $67.45; and fifth ward, $39.25.

The report of City Attorney Will. H. H. Dougherty on the unpaid claim made by Catherine Scanlon for injury from a fall alleged to be due to a defective sidewalk on Center street, was received and placed on file. The unpaid claim of $1,000 was passed, payable from the general fund, in favor of W. H. Dougherty, to settle the claim made for the injury. This amount, it was declared, covered all charges due to medical attention and damages pertaining to the accident.

City Treasurer G. W. Muenchow was directed to transfer the sum of $1,847 from the third ward fund to the general fund for payment of crushed stone used in street improvement in 1914. It was also ordered that the following amounts be transferred from the fund for improvement work paid for last year from the general fund as shown by the daily report sheets of the street department: First ward, crushed stone, $14.30; brick, $12.87; and cement, $31.20; second ward, stone, $1.75; cross plates, $3.03; gutter covers, $14.95; third ward, stone, $63.60; brick, $67.25; cement, $36.30; cross plates, $84.30; gutter covers, $246.20; fourth ward, stone, $64.60; brick, $39.28; cement, $32.50; cross plates, $148.27; gutter plates, $26.81; and tile, $216.48; fifth ward, stone, $33.44; brick, $30.67; cement, $153.80; cross plates, $48.42; and gutter covers, $22.90.

A resolution was passed to draw an order on the city treasury for $500 in favor of George Wilbur for money deposited when an application was made for a saloon license which was later withdrawn.

The five hundred dollar bond of John Rickett for the operation of a store in the city for a period of one year, was approved.

The report of the superintendent of the stone crusher for the past two weeks was approved.

The city engineer was instructed to prepare correct grades on Center avenue from Pleasant to Rock river; on Center street from Lin street to Center avenue; on Pleasant street from Lin to Center avenue, and on West Milwaukee street from Locust street to Center avenue. The grades, it is expected, will be made for the repairing of Center avenue and the settlement of a long standing controversy regarding the grade of this street.

W. R. Hayes was granted permission to use a portion of North Main street during the construction of a building. It was reported by one of the commissioners that entirely too much of the street was being used at the present time for the storage of material and the matter will be adjusted. Chief Engineer H. C. YIELD OF TOBACCO CAN BE IMPROVED BY USE OF POTASH

Bureau of Plant Industry Gives Results of Experiments on Supplementing Manure.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, June 23.—The yield and the quality of tobacco can be improved, the Bureau of Plant Industry finds after a series of investigations, by the use of potash and phosphoric acid as a supplement to barn manure. This was proved in New York and Pennsylvania. In the dark tobacco district of Kentucky it was found that liberal use of phosphates will make tobacco growing more profitable.

Encouragement of interest in winter cereals in the south has been part of the work of the Bureau and such has been accomplished by the distribution of pure varieties of wheat. It is reported, but a new cotton industry appears likely to be developed in the southwestern states outside of the cotton belt. Protection against the boll weevil is afforded by the dry climate, which also allows the crop to be sent to market in better condition. The higher cost of labor and of transportation will be overcome by these advantages it is believed.

A new insecticide carrying the formidable name, "para-dichlorobenzene," has been tested with favorable results by the Department of Agriculture. Being non-inflammable and inexpensive, it has distinct advantages over many other disinfectants. While deadly to insects, it is harmless to humans and it possesses no odor to many insecticides. It is not necessary to sprinkle it all over the premises, either, as one needs to do with ammonia or naphthalene sometimes. Simply exposing a sufficient quantity in one or two open receptacles placed above the infested cases, good or material which require fumigation is sufficient.

Moths, flies, roaches, ants and aphids are readily killed by para-dichlorobenzene used in ordinary strength. The action is primarily on the insects' nervous system. When a moth is exposed to the vapors for a few seconds it first displays great excitement or uneasiness, followed closely by spasmodic convulsions, after which it turns over on its back and dies.

Sensitive persons should not remain for a long time in a closed room where para-dichlorobenzene is freely exposed, as the odor may cause annoyance.

The Bureau of Crop Estimates reports the death of a veteran voluntary correspondent in the person of Smith McWilliams of Galena, Ohio. He had served in his country for more than 30 years. It is stated that there are at least 40 others in the United States with records equalling McWilliams and an immense number who have been furnishing the desired information regularly for more than 20 years.

Paris, June 23.—Warm weather has finally brought fashion back to the Bois de Boulogne—war fashion particularly. The other morning were noticed taking their morning ride a boy scout and an English girl in khaki leggings, flat crowned cap and all. On foot was another girl in a blue skirt giving a perfect illusion of dark hair. A black cat was seen to jump down the legs. There was also a pretty blonde with the blouse of a marine and a brunette in a cantinieres red tunic and pale blue skirt. Her long blue tunic in perfect imitation of the marine regulation infantry blue—with green and red trimmings are now very common. The only war costume that is not very closely imitated is the extreme red of the falots; it is prohibited by government decree.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN HAVE FINE BANQUET

Supper Prepared and Served by Men Enjoyed by Over Seventy Last Evening—Reverend Brown Is Guest.

Seventy-three men members of the Presbyterian church and congregation, enjoyed a banquet last evening which was prepared and served by the men themselves without aid or supervision from the women folk. It was a "get-together" meeting for the purpose of getting better acquainted and proved to be a most stimulating affair. Reverend Brown of Beloit, former pastor of the church, during whose term as minister the present church edifice was erected, was an honored guest at the banquet and the program which followed.

The menu for the "mere men's" supper was as follows: Roast ham, creamed peas, potatoes, bread and butter, coffee, ice cream, strawberries and cream. I. F. Wortendyke presided over the banquet table as toastmaster and made an excellent toast on the topic, "Father and Son." Elder D. C. Harker responded to a toast on "The Relative Worth of a Christian," and J. C. Kline on "The Opportunity of a Christian."

Following the supper and toasts the men retired to the chapel where a fine program of music and addresses, all by men, was presented. Arthur Schott sang several vocal solos. Walter Airds played a piano solo. Mr. Wheeler of Beloit gave a violin number, and Mr. Jenkins of Beloit a vocal solo. The address of the evening was delivered by the Reverend Hugh L. Moore of Beloit, who was a guest at the banquet. Reverend George Edwin Parlosco acted as chairman of the committee on arrangements.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Walter Cox Will Again Be in Charge. Swimming Class Schedule Is Arranged, For.

Next Monday the four playgrounds will open for the summer months. All the apparatus and equipment has been secured so the grounds will be ready for that date. Walter Cox, who had charge of the grounds last year, will again have supervision.

Only three of his four assistants last year, Edward Atwood, Robert Cunningham and Victor Hemming, have returned. Ray Adler, the fourth director last year, having decided not to enter the work in his place, Gay W. Curtis, past instructor and athletic director at the high school, has been secured.

Plans are being made to carry out the swimming program of last year, that of having the girls go swimming three mornings in the week and the boys the remaining three days. The playgrounds will also be open at the same hours for the use of the children and grown people. If the present plans are carried out, baseball and basketball leagues will be formed as soon as the grounds are fairly under way. In previous years the leagues were not formed until late in the summer, but with the expected increased interest, plans are being made for an earlier start.

JANESVILLE MAN HEADS BELOIT COLLEGE ALUMNI

S. M. Smith of this city, on Monday was elected president of the Beloit College Alumni association. Officers elected were: Bradley Tyrell, Delavan, vice president; E. H. Ford, members of a committee to nominate college trustees.

YIELD OF TOBACCO CAN BE IMPROVED BY USE OF POTASH

Bureau of Plant Industry Gives Results of Experiments on Supplementing Manure.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, June 23.—The yield and the quality of tobacco can be improved, the Bureau of Plant Industry finds after a series of investigations, by the use of potash and phosphoric acid as a supplement to barn manure. This was proved in New York and Pennsylvania. In the dark tobacco district of Kentucky it was found that liberal use of phosphates will make tobacco growing more profitable.

Encouragement of interest in winter cereals in the south has been part of the work of the Bureau and such has been accomplished by the distribution of pure varieties of wheat. It is reported, but a new cotton industry appears likely to be developed in the southwestern states outside of the cotton belt. Protection against the boll weevil is afforded by the dry climate, which also allows the crop to be sent to market in better condition. The higher cost of labor and of transportation will be overcome by these advantages it is believed.

A new insecticide carrying the formidable name, "para-dichlorobenzene," has been tested with favorable results by the Department of Agriculture. Being non-inflammable and inexpensive, it has distinct advantages over many other disinfectants. While deadly to insects, it is harmless to humans and it possesses no odor to many insecticides. It is not necessary to sprinkle it all over the premises, either, as one needs to do with ammonia or naphthalene sometimes. Simply exposing a sufficient quantity in one or two open receptacles placed above the infested cases, good or material which require fumigation is sufficient.

Moths, flies, roaches, ants and aphids are readily killed by para-dichlorobenzene used in ordinary strength. The action is primarily on the insects' nervous system. When a moth is exposed to the vapors for a few seconds it first displays great excitement or uneasiness, followed closely by spasmodic convulsions, after which it turns over on its back and dies.

Sensitive persons should not remain for a long time in a closed room where para-dichlorobenzene is freely exposed, as the odor may cause annoyance.

is known but Corsets, and every detail concerning Corsets thoroughly known. And requested an interview with the proprietor, it was with our customary expectation of being directed to the private office of an invisible Mr. Dion. So the reply we received was unexpected.

"I am Mrs. Dion," she said. "Now, there isn't any reason in the world why we should have been surprised to find that a woman has brought a merchandising institution to the magnitude of this one, as we reflected while waiting for her to join us at the rear of the shop."

"And the very prominence of her success indicated that there were some very good and interesting reasons why she had gone so far—a story that we felt would be as suggestive to other business women as it would be interesting to every one."

"Became Business Woman Early. The southern born, it was evident, once that Miss Dion had sacrificed none of her femininity to the man-mannered attitude her business life demands."

"I've been a business woman since I was old enough to be anything," she began. "I was born in Nashville, and was employed in one of the big stores there for several years."

"Then I came north to work for a corset manufacturing concern near Chicago, here, and finally originated the corset department for one of the big State street department stores."

"That was in 1900, and I remained with them for seven years, when I opened this shop."

"While of course my training in the manufacturing end of the business was invaluable, it was the selling and managerial end that fascinated me. In this business I simply sell corsets—I don't make them."

"And that was my sphere in the department store. The studying of my patron's tastes, and idiosyncrasies, the conquering of difficult ones—the winning of unreasonable ones—all the things that discourage and wear out the ordinary saleswoman were just fuel to the fire of my enthusiasm."

"It wasn't long until I had a following that made me very happy—but when they began to say, when I was on a buying trip, that they'd wait until I returned, to make their purchases, me, things began taking on a somewhat different character."

"I was no longer permitted to meet the trade. I was given an office on another floor and my activities were confined to the buying and general managing of the department."

"When I learned that it was generally surmised I was going to open an establishment of my own, and would of course take my following with me, I was puzzled."

"Until then the idea had never occurred to me, but once suggested it took root, and for the remaining years I was there, I worked and saved with that idea in view."

"In 1907 I took the plunge."

"After seven years in department store work, I was a deep dyed advertising enthusiast. So I advertised my venture generously from the first."

"That start was rather ambitious, I must admit, for from the first I shouldered the burden of a nearly $7,000 yearly rental. But I had confidence in myself, and in the newspapers—and as a result, I made money from the first month."

Find Newspapers Only Effective Medium.

"And here's something I believed when I started, and that I have absolutely proved by experience: the newspapers are the only effective medium for advertising a specialty shop."

"So far as I know, not one dollar I have invested in any other form of advertising has brought me one cent in return. It's like pouring water into a sieve. Whereas, I hear from my newspaper ads for years."

Newspapers Bring Lasting Returns.

"Do you mean that literally, Miss Dion?"

"I certainly do," she replied. "Nor do I mean that it happens in isolated instances, but frequently, that I get returns on ads of months back, or a year back, even two years back."

"Just this morning, a woman brought in a cut that I ran five weeks ago, and bought two corsets of that model. A few weeks ago I filled a mail order from an enclosed ad clipping run two years ago."

Describes Special Advertising Feature.

"And that illustrates an especially valuable feature in corset advertising. The woman of today knows that the corset is literally the foundation of her attractiveness—of her well-groomed appearance. And while no two groups of women have similar figures, they all want to look as nearly alike as possible, or rather they all want to conform to the demands of existing fashions."

"So there must be corsets to answer the demand of all figures."

"My advertising copy therefore consists of cuts and descriptions of special models. For instance, one day I will show a model for the woman who needs certain restrictions, another for the one who needs a rounding of her straight lines and angles—or perhaps one for the trim little girl who dresses on an allowance and to whom price is more important than special features of construction."

"It is hard for a customer to tell the saleswoman just what she needs and it is hard for a saleswoman who is competent to tell the customer. So when a woman sees the model that has been designed to meet all her requirements pictured and described, it reduces her buying to the minimum of trouble and anxiety. And this kind of advertising enables the suburbanite to shop by mail."

Advantages "Often and Big."

"Which have you found most important, Miss Dion, the size or frequency of your ads?"

"The ideal advertising, both frequent and big, and I've lived up to my ideal as nearly as possible."

"I advertise several times a week, ordinarily to use space ranging from two columns to three columns, 10 or 14 inches."

Are there seasons in your business?

"I would hardly say that. Of course spring outfitting time is our busiest time, but corsets are constant sellers and reasonably quick repeaters, so there really is no poor season."

Business Increases 30% Yearly.

"What, then, has newspaper advertising really accomplished for you, in these eight years, Miss Dion?"

"If you are a mathematician, you must entirely with the growth of my business," she returned, "for neither the hard work I have devoted to it nor the standard I've maintained in service and stock would have achieved this growth alone, without the co-operation of the newspapers."

"The business has increased 30% each year over the preceding year, as a result of newspaper advertising. If you are a mathematician, which I am not, you can figure how much bigger it is now than when I established it."

"The trouble with many women in business is that they are afraid to venture, however much they long to gain. They are not yet as alive as men are to the absolute necessity of big and constant newspaper advertising nowadays, for the 'sure thing' winnings it brings to their business. When they do wake up to this fact, there will be more women at the heads of their own successful establishments, instead of spending their energies and superior ability conducting one department of some one else's business."

And she answered an insistent call from the fitting room.

FRIGHTENED DRAY TEAM RUSHES THROUGH CITY INJURING TWO PEOPLE

Evansville, June 23.—The dray team owned by G. Jewell and which was tied in front of the W. Biglow furniture store yesterday afternoon took fright at the laundry wagon, broke their tie strap and made a lively dash for liberty. They passed a course due east, keeping to the center of the road as though skillfully reined.

About one mile out of town they collided with the rig driven by Bert Hungerford, who was accompanied by his two children and who were thrown out, suffering very slight injuries.

An auto which started in pursuit of the runaway, returned victorious. The climax was exceedingly fortunate.

A special meeting of the common council of the city of Evansville was held in the office of the clerk of said city on Tuesday evening, June 22.

Meeting called to order at 7:30 by Mayor Campbell.

Present Aldermen Axtell, Babcock, Pease, Shreve, Williams, Winston.

The call of the meeting as follows was read.

To V. A. Axtell, J. M. Shreve, R. Williams, F. H. Winston, Clyde Babcock, H. E. Pease, Aldermen of the city of Evansville, Rock county, Wisconsin.

Physician Points Out Danger of Plague From South America

Washington, June 23.—W. C. Rucker, assistant surgeon general, U. S. public health service, says need for greater precautions in this country against bubonic plague. Since the plague follows the path of steamship lines, he says, this country is threatened from every quarter of the world in which disease now exists. The ships carry rats and the rats carry the disease.

Rodent and human plague, he says, were found in the Hawaiian Islands no longer ago than last August. The whole Pacific coast, is menaced by the existence of the disease in Ecuador and Peru, on the western coast of South America, a little over 4,000 miles from San Francisco. The entire Gulf coast of our country is menaced by plague in Havana, 769 miles from Galveston, 501 miles from New Orleans, 323 miles from Tampa, and 92 miles from Key West. He says the disease was found among rats in New Orleans no longer ago than March 9, 1915. On account of the unsettled conditions now existing in Mexico, it is impossible to know whether or not plague exists in her Gulf ports.

Practically all of the ports of British India, with the exception of Calcutta, are infected with plague. Rangoon, Madras, Colombo, Bombay and Karachi report the presence of the disease, and from the latter point it has extended up into the Persian Gulf. Singapore, Mauritius, Zanzibar, Queenstown, in South Africa, and Dakar in Senegal, all have plague. Directly or indirectly our country is in commercial communication with all of the infected places, which have been mentioned, and it must be admitted that in view of the fact that plague is a disease of rodents which travel around the world in ships, the United States must consider itself as seriously menaced by bubonic plague.

"Under normal conditions, plague is an epidemic disease of rodents. Occasionally, as favorable conditions arise, it becomes epidemic. When in the latter condition it is perpetuated locally and is distributed to distant ports. Since the disease is capable of such perpetuation and since it is found in almost all of the great ports of the world, there is no reason to believe that it does not exist in the remaining ports, and that our lack of knowledge as to its existence in these ports from which it has not been reported means that the search for the disease has either been neglected or has been made halfhearted. Careful rodent surveys have been conducted in only three ports of this country and in all three of these the disease has been found to exist. Having outlined the condition which exists, Dr. Rucker gives the steps to be taken for protection from last plague. He says there must first be a maritime quarantine. This is applied effectively to the ships, which are disinfected. The routine disinfection of ships, if done thoroughly, will prevent the introduction of rats, and therefore the introduction of bubonic plague, but such a measure is of temporary value only, he says, and if omitted a single time may be followed by the introduction of plague rats.

"The second line of defense," he says, "is preventing the embarkation or disembarkation of rodents at wharves. This is accomplished by thorough inspection and mechanical guards. But the chief defense against plague is rat proofing the environment in which man lives and works. No modern city can afford to regard this precaution as a luxury. It is the duty of every municipality to incorporate in its public health and building codes ordinances requiring the rat-proofing of all structures within its jurisdiction. The rat-proofing of buildings is really worth while as permanent impervious material such as brick, concrete, or stone. This will fortify the ground areas against rats. To wait for an epidemic before taking this precaution is both dangerous and unreasonably expensive."

In conclusion, Dr. Rucker says that through the efforts of Surgeon General Rupert Blue and his staff, we know that plague may be eradicated or prevented. The remedy is simple, and he states that it lies with our power to decide whether we will make use of the well-proven measures of prevention and relief.
